

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH DELTA

CIRCLE: Cutaway view of one of Delta's luxurious all-metal Lockheed Electras showing passengers' cabin, pilots' compartment and cargo space.

TOP LEFT: Radio control desk. To maintain constant communication by voice with airliners and to provide a high speed inter-city reservation service, Delta has installed a chain of powerful radio telephone and telegraph stations across the entire Trans-Southern Route.

TOP RIGHT: A Magnaflex inspection unit—one of the latest developments in airline maintenance equipment. These electrical units are able to detect flaws or cracks which are hidden as much as one half inch below the surface of metal parts.

BOTTOM LEFT: In the instrument laboratory, all flight instruments are periodically disassembled and subjected to microscopic inspection. Certain parts which are worn as little as one ten thousandth of an inch must be discarded and replaced.

BOTTOM RIGHT: In the weather bureau. At all terminals, skilled meteorologists check atmospheric conditions twenty-four hours each day. Prior to flight departure time, all pilots are required to make a careful study of weather conditions along, and adjacent to, the course to be flown. Enroute they are kept advised of any changes by radio telephone.
