Summary of IMMIGRATION REQUIREMENTS

The immigration requirements of the countries contained herein are intended only as a summary or outline for intending Pan American Airways' passengers. They are not to be regarded as complete as there are restrictions covering certain classes and races not included herein, nor will Pan American Airways be responsible for their accuracy. Passengers are warned to consult the proper consular officials or company offices for latest and more detailed information before commencing their trips.

Fees or taxes quoted herein are in U. S. Cy. unless otherwise specified. There are certain fees charged by Consulates for viséing passports and other documents and for issuing tourist or identification cards which are not quoted herein. Passengers should be prepared to pay these charges when requested. All government ticket or head taxes will be collected in the country which levies the tax unless otherwise stated.

Passports must always contain a photograph of the bearer and all extra photographs required must be of passport size.

Since in most cases, Health, Vaccination and Police Certificates must be viséed by Consuls at the same time passports are viséed, it is advisable to obtain such documents first. Health Certificates must show that holder's state of health is good and that he is free from contagious disease. Certain countries require that Health Certificates state the absence of specific diseases as stated herein. Most countries require that Health and Vaccination Certificates be certified by the Board of Health of traveler's residence, therefore, such certification is always advisable. Vaccination Certificates refer to smallpox vaccination. Police Certificates or certificates of good conduct always must be issued by authorities of traveler's residence. Where these documents are required to enter several countries, one of each will suffice for all countries but will be viséed by each country to be entered. Passengers entering any continental South American country should generally have: passport, visés for each country of stopover or destination, health, vaccination and police certificates.

It is always advisable to carry some proof of financial responsibility.

Certain countries require such evidence to be exhibited at port of entry. There are in some cases documents to be obtained at port of entry giving permission to remain in a country or for identification purposes upon departure. Minor and unmarried women travelling alone must sometimes obtain permission to enter certain countries.

The term "transit passenger" as used herein refers to one who de-parts, after a short scheduled stop, on the same plane in which he arrives, or on the next scheduled departure after an overnight stop, provided always that the passenger holds tickets to a destination beyond the country in which the transit stop is made.

PLANT QUARANTINE RESTRICTIONS

Do not take plants, fruits or vegetables to the United States without a federal permit. Because of the possibility of introducing plant pests, certain plants, fruits and vegetables of foreign origin are prohibited entry into the United States, Others are admitted under permit only which should be secured in advance from the U. S. Department of Agriculture

Fruits and vegetables should not be taken from Puerto Rico or Hawaji to the mainland unless a federal certificate of inspection has been secured at San Juan or Honolulu and accompanies the material. Plants and plant products entered in violation of plant quarantine regulations are subject to seizure. Other countries have similar restrictions, as to which our offices will supply full information.
