CARNATION COMPANY

Few great organizations can identify themselves more closely with the West than the Carnation Company.

The first can of Carnation Evaporated Milk—later to become famous as "the milk from Contented Cows" — was produced in Kent, Washington, in 1899. The years since have seen the number of Carnation products increase from one to 113, and its influence spread from the little town of Kent throughout America and overseas. Yet its roots are still firmly in the West.

World headquarters of the Carnation Company are in Los Angeles. From here are directed the company's vast operations in the United States and abroad. A few miles from Carnation, Washington, is the famous Carnation Milk Farms, home of the greatest Holstein herd in history. Cattle from prize-winning bloodlines are regularly shipped from here to dairy farms all over the country to improve the cattle supplying milk to local Carnation evaporating plants.

With its origin in the Pacific Northwest, its world headquarters in Los Angeles, and its farms in Washington, the Carnation Company is truly at home in the West!
